Portrait in the Twenty-First Century

Molly Crabapple
Portrait of Natasha Lennard

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

Natasha Lennard is a journalist and close friend. She poses with an ACAB (All Cops Are Bastards) scarf, a gift from a Turkish football ultra from Group Çarşı.

Molly Crabapple
Portrait of Stoya

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

Stoya is a writer, director and one of the most celebrated pornstars in the world. She is also a close friend. In 2014, Stoya was instrumental in organizing porn performers into a political force. I drew this while she smoked on my fire escape.

Molly Crabapple
Portraits of Donald Trump and his Daughter Ivanka, in Dubai

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

In 2014, I scammed an invite to a press conference held by Donald Trump for the opening of his branded golf courses in Dubai. I asked him why his construction workers were paid $200 a month. Neither he nor Ivanka were pleased.

Molly Crabapple
Portrait of Alexa O'Brien

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

Alexa O'Brien is an independent journalist who is best known for her exhaustive coverage of the Chelsea Manning trial. O'Brien spent years going down to Fort Meade, copying the trial by hand, then typing it up each night and putting it online. Without her, there would be no public transcript of the trial. She's pictured here chain-smoking over her laptop.

Molly Crabapple
Portrait of Laurie Penny

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

Laurie Penny is a British journalist, feminist and close friend. We met during the 2010 UK student revolts, and she lived on my floor during much of Occupy Wall Street. Laurie is pictured banging out an article.

Molly Crabapple
Syrian Refugee Children. Bab al Salam IDP Camp, Syria

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

Bab al Salam IDP camp contains 20,000 mostly women and children. It is approximately 100 yards over the border from Turkey, with the crossing controlled by the Islamic Front. The camp has been bombed twice by ISIS.

Molly Crabapple
Syrian Girl Scarred by Barrel Bomb

2014
ink on paper
13 x 10 inches

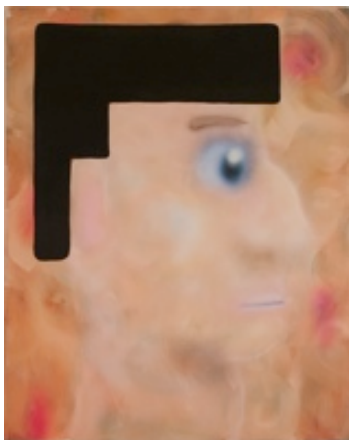

This portrait of a young Syrian girl was done in Bab al Salam IDP camp. Approximately a year before I met her, her neighborhood was hit with barrel bombs (barrels packed with TNT and shrapnel to cause maximum injury) dropped from a government helicopter. Her mother told me it took her eight months to recover enough to play.

Portrait with Eugenia Gortchakova

2009 versionhood portrait series c-print framed edition of 3 +AP
11.5 x 15.5 inches

A portrait of Kristin Lucas taken with Eugenia Gortchakova in Oldenburg, Germany on October 5, 2009. Gortchakova was born on October 5, the same day of the year that Lucas was legally refreshed through a same name change in a California courtroom. Gortchakova is a visual artist who lives in Germany and shares a resemblance to Lucas; she has a twin sister who lives in Russia. On the anniversary of Lucas's refresh and Gortchakova's birthday, Lucas bought Gortchakova a matching red jacket and invited her to have their portrait taken together.
