HUGH HAYDEN

Postmasters's "Glorious Twelfth," August 12

The New York-based artist Hugh Hayden has built a following for his intriguing taxidermy-related artworks, as well as his high-concept dinner parties (one of which was devoted to spherical foods). Now these twin interests are being united in Hayden's most ambitious project to date: an August 12 event at Postmasters that will feature the New York premiere of his transportingly quirky short film "Hugh the Hunter" (directed by Zachary Heinzerling) as well as something the announcement describes as a "multi-sensory experience including a sculptural 'chicken n' waffles' remix of a classic Scottish dish made in collaboration with the culinary talents of Ghetto Gastro and wild game birds from D'artagnan."
