GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN

KRISTIN LUCAS

Magnetic personality takes on a new meaning in “Involuntary Reception,” a deadpan video projection lampooning the alienation of cyber-culture. A young woman has a big problem: she’s electromagnetically charged. She can’t hold down a job (computer chips erase in her presence) or even go for a swim (like an electric eel, she’d be fine—it’s others she’s worried about). Lucas, who performs the talking-head monologue, has an irresistible, geeky pathos. Through May 5. (Postmasters, 459 W. 19th St. 727-3323.)
